

People Want Government to Drive More Innovation

The private sector is taking the lead on innovation, but the GE Global Innovation Barometer shows a hunger around the world for government to play a stronger role in encouraging entrepreneurship and fostering a business-friendly climate.

Among countries, the government of China is seen as coming the closest to delivering on innovation

How much more government support for innovation is demanded:

Emerging economies are seen as doing more to support innovation in a number of areas. Citizens who believe their government:

- % Makes innovation a priority
- % Has policies that favor entrepreneurship
- % Has a regulatory system that encourages people to start a business:

